On final round, there can be up to 11 people to compete. Anyone who join tournament can judge the final work

Up to 11 comparisons happen

Notification go to all contestant to fill it out

Can't vote for yourself

Admin can choose how many winners in contest

Always have winner and random draw winner. Anyone voted on last voting round gets enter in. Can't be someone who already won

Contest Structure:

Minimum entries of 12 to make a contest viable - no maximum

Final number of contest entries is determined at the date and time set out in contest creation

At that time the buttons on the Contest ticket and in the contest details area are dead

The contest software divides the entries into pods of 5 max. or 4 min. competitors

Each competitor is sent a notification by email and BuddyBoss notification containing a link to the voting area (admin needs to be able to populate those messages in admin)

Voting:

From that link - Each pod member is presented with 2 of the entries from their pod (not their own) from which they must choose the best one, then the best one remains and a new pod entry appears, again they choose the best one, this progresses until they have chosen a winner from the 3 or 4 available entries in their pod.

A popup appears thanking them for their votes (admin needs to be able to populate those messages in admin)

Initially there are two levels identified as "Level 2" and "Back door level"

Voting results are determined as:

Anyone that receives a vote in tier one proceeds to tier two.

Anyone not receiving a vote is eliminated.

Once all the initial votes are in, the software creates pods again using the same initial rules

Level 2 voting results are determined as:

- each person in the pod receives one vote - they all proceed to next level
- one person gets 3 and another gets 2 - they proceed and any others are eliminated
- one person gets 3 and 2 others get 1 - the 3 votes proceeds to next level the 1 gets eliminated
- one person gets 2 and the other 3 get 1 vote - the 2 votes proceeds to next level any others are eliminated
- two people get 2 and one gets 1 vote - the 2 votes proceed to next level any others are eliminated

(Note: Any competitor not receiving a vote is eliminated)

Rounds of voting like this continue in each level until there are 11 or less competitors remaining and they become the final pod

Final voting results are determined as:

- All registered competitors may vote on the final entries (can vote for their own)

(Note: Admin needs to be able to create notifications for each round and we need to automate their delivery)

Voting Rules:

Voting is a 24 hour phase (people get notified by email and notification immediately)

If you don't vote within that time you are eliminated on any tier

In tier 1 anyone that receives a vote proceeds to tier 2 anyone without votes is eliminated

If 1 person votes and no one else votes then they proceed

If 2 or more vote but the others don't and they haven't received a vote then everyone is eliminated

In an instance where someone got votes but didn't vote, they are eliminated and the votes they received are disregarded but the software still progresses anyone with a vote on tier 1 and on other tiers it still looks for a clear winner or tie to progress

In any other tier only a clear winner or a tied winner proceeds

Winner notifications:

- Admin needs to be able to create notifications for each round and we need to automate their delivery

Contest communications - notifications sent at different intervals to help contest progress.

We need to be able to create and schedule custom notifications
